ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION:

This is a 1-1/2 story rectangular plan side gable structure with a small 1-story wing on the left side and a large shed dormer on the front slope. The house rests on a granite foundation and according to Tax records was built in 1781 although little evidence remains to support that date. The front roof projects out to cover a full-width front porch with a concrete floor and steel posts. Located under the porch roof is the central front entrance flanked by 2 angle bays, each bay having three windows. All windows in the house have been replaced with insulated units with 6/1 grilles. The centered entrance and the general form of the building suggest it could have been a Cape Cod with a new roof, dormers, bays and porch added later. On the other hand this house does not appear on the 1856 or 1871 mapping (the maps are often incomplete) and may be a late 19th century Italianate-period house that was then altered with the front porch addition. The structure is shingled and in the porch area the shingle butts are decoratively staggered. The roof eaves of the house, dormer and wing have wide overhangs. There is an interior brick chimney located on the left side of the rear slope of the roof. There is a shingled 1-story shed or chicken coop with a shed roof and 3 pairs of 6/6 windows with wood storms (chicken coops were typically built of windows salvaged from the house in mid-to-late 19th century when 2/2 replacement sash were installed.
