ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION:

The Greek Revival dwelling is typical of that style in the Dartmouth area. The gable end front faces the road, and the doorway is located at the front right. Doorway is framed by a small entablature, paneled pilasters, and sidelights. The doorway pilasters echo the larger pilasters located at the house corners. These too are paneled. The cornice is extended over the facades and at the front there is a cornice return. At the left side is a small bay-like addition of 1 story. Front porch appears to be a late Victorian era addition, ca. 1900. Foundation is granite. [Note: Preceding description transcribed from 1983 survey form]
